Dr. D. A. Amoss has been acquitted on one charge, after a trial of nine judicial days in which 140 witnesses were examined and 14 hours of speaking listened to by a jury so acceptable to the defense that only 5 of its 15 challenges were used. The result was not unexpected. The best the prosecution hoped for was that a few men might be on the jury who would refuse to acquit and let the case end in a mistrial.

The case went to the jury at five o'clock Thursday afternoon and Judge Hanbery, after again admonishing the jurors as to their conduct, sent them to their room. He told them they need not consider the case at the hotel, but return to the jury room for a night session if they failed to reach a speedy verdict. After supper they returned to the court house and about 7:30 notified the sheriff that a verdict had been reached.
The court officials and attorneys were hastily summoned and Judge Hanbery appeared at 8 o'clock and directed the sheriff to bring the jury in. The defendant, Dr. D. A. Amoss, about the same time entered, followed by Mrs. Amoss and two of his attorneys, Judge Cook and John Kelly.

Deputy Clerk Geo. Lackey was handed the verdict and read:
"We the jury find the plaintiff, Dr. D. A. Amoss not guilty as charged".
J. H. Williams,
One of the jury.

All announced that it was their verdict. There was no demonstration, as Judge Hanbery had warned the fifty or more spectators, who had come in, that there must be none.
John Kelly got up and said in the absence of Judge Bush he thanked the jury.

Then Dr. Amoss arose and said,
"Gentlemen I desire—"

Before he got further Judge Han-bery declared court adjourned and the scene was at an end, except that a few of the defendant's sympathizers gathered about him to congratulate him on being one-third through.

According to one of the jurors
but one vote was taken.

The closing speeches were made Thursday afternoon.

Judge C. H. Bush began at one o'clock and spoke for more than two hours, evidently under great disadvantages, as he was still weak from putting down lawlessness he endorsed in spite of his attack on him, and called upon the jury to refuse to be influenced by "the lawless band of night riders on one hand or the wild-eyed and fanatical enthusiasts on the other," but to apply the law in its majesty, if they believed the defendant guilty according to the evidence.

Trimble and Fowler.

Mr. S. Y. Trimble who spoke Thursday morning made a speech that put him in the front rank of the lawyers of Western Kentucky.
For nearly two hours the great audience hung upon his words, every aisle being packed to the doors, every inch of standing room occupied, many ladies being present.
Mr. Trimble reviewed the chain of evidence from start to finish, riddled the attempted alibi and said that not a link was missing in the chain. His appeal was one of the strongest ever heard in the courthouse, reminding the hearers of Jas. B. Garnett in his palmiest days. As a criminal lawyer, Mr. Trimble steps into the highest class. He was preceded by Judge W. T. Fowler, whose argument for the defense was an especially strong plea, considered by many the best on that side. Judge Fowler is a pleasing speaker with many of the graces of oratory and he left nothing undone in his review of the case to put the best possible showing on the testimony at hand.

Perhaps the largest crowd present
at any time was Wednesday night, when Judge Jas. C. Sims made the only speech of the night session for the prosecution. There was not an inch of surplus space in the court room, probably 1,000 people being crowded into a room with seating capacity for 500. Mr. Sims spoke an hour and a half, paying special attention to the law in the case as given by the court. He said the state had made out a clear case of guilt against Dr. Amoss and asserted that it had been shown that the defendant had conspired to commit the crime with which he is charged, with no one to refute it except Dr.

Amoss himself. He pointed out that Guy Dunning and the other defendants had not been put on the stand to testify for Dr. Amoss. He riddled the alibi, referring to it as "a lie-by," the favorite defense of generals, bank presidents, embezzlers and night rider chieftains, but seldom used to acquit poor white trash and negroes. He urged the jury to do their duty in punishing the high as well as the lowly criminal.

County Attorney Duffy's speech, the first for the Commonwealth, has been most favorably commented upon. It was a fearless and eloquent denunciation of the crimes of which the defendant was charged.
At one time in his speech, when describing the clan of 1,500 that came at John W. Hollowell's call to pre-tect him from the "Bob Cats," he said Dr. Amoss was there. At this point Dr. Amoss interrupted to ask
"How do you know I was there?"

"Because," was the reply, "the witnesses swore you were there."
He called upon the jury to punish,
not the boys who were misled into crime, but the leaders and agitators who were responsible for what their dupes and followers did. Mr. Duffy was at his best and his prosecution was vigorous and strong. The speech was an effort that added to his reputation as an able and faithful official.

WHAT IS A NEGRO

Defied by the Court of Appeals of Kentucky.

Frankfort, Ky.—What is a negro within the meaning of the school laws of the State was determined by the Court of Appeals in a case from Pike county, involving the right of children with one-sixteenth negro blood to attend a white school. The case was that of Troy Mullins and others against Edmond Belcher, trustee. The court says that the question does not depend upon the personal appearance of the children but comes down in its final analysis, to whether or not the children have or have not an "appreciable admix-ture of negro blood." In conclusion the court says:

As the makers of the Constitution
did not undertake to define the word
"colored children" as employed in Section 187 of the Constitution, we concluded that these words were used in their ordinary and general sense and that they include all children wholly or in part of negro blood of having an appreciable admixture thereof.

RENEW OLD GRUDGE

Two Former Kentuckians Fight Pistol Duel.

Evansville, Ind., March 15.—An old grudge dating back to the time they were boys together in Ohio county, Ky., resulted in a duel being fought late last night at Hatfield, Ind., near here between Raymond Combs and Jesse Grant, both about twenty-five years old. Combs was shot in the abdomen, and is said to be dying. Grant was shot in the face and will probably recover. The men met on the platform of the traction station at Hatfield and opened fire at each other.

DETECTIVES DENY GIRL IS DEAD

Declare Bones Taken From Train Wreck Not Human.

PREPARING TO SUE.

Still Assert They Found

Trace of Only One Woman in Coaches.

Is Fannie Morris, of Dawson Springs, the girl who is supposed to have been cremated in the wreck on the Tennessee railroad February 19, still alive?

It is the opinion of the railroad officials and detectives, who have been at work upon the case, that the girl was not a passenger on the ill-fated passenger train, and that she is alive. The handful of bones that were picked up from the ashes of the coaches, packed in a small box and buried in the cemetery at Dawson Springs are believed to have been bones thrown away from the kitchen of a camp of section laborers.

Detective T. J. Moore returned this morning from Hopkinsville, where he has been in consultation with H. C. Lassing, claim agent for the Tennessee Central, and efforts are being made to locate the missing girl if possible. About a week ago the girl's father, Brucher Morris, who is installing the machinery at the Paducah Milling company, talked with Detective James Collins about securing damages from the railroad, and Detective T. J. Moore went to Hopkinsville to have a consultation with the claim agent.

A careful investigation has been made, and the railroad officials say they have a trace of only one woman passenger, who was taken to a Nashville hospital. It was learned that a girl answering the description of Fannie Morris, boarded a south bound Illinois Central Passenger train on February 19 at Claxton, a small station one-half mile from Dawson Springs. No trace of her since then has been found.

In checking the train from the conductor's tickets all the passengers are found and according to the passengers they say only one woman was on the train. At the scene of the wreck a short time ago a gang of section laborers camped and it is believed that the bones found in the ashes are the bones of animals used for food. It is believed that the fire from the passenger coach would not have been sufficient to have totally destroyed the body of the girl. On board the passenger train was a traveling salesman for a jewelry firm and his grip, containing samples of jewelry was destroyed, and it is believed that the articles of jewelry identified as the possession of Miss Morris might be the remains of the salesman's samples.

BOWLING GREEN BLAZE

Destroyed $50,000 Worth of

Bowling Green, Ky., March 15.— Fire early this morning destroyed property valued at $50,000. McGinnis, livery stable, containing 24 horses, the armory and its contents, the cupola of the courthouse and several stores were destroyed. The county jail was threatened and all prisoners were removed under a guard of citizens, firemen were slightly injured.

FOR LONG LIFE AND HEALTH

Two Meals a Day and an Occasional Fast Is the Simple Recipe of an English Doctor.

Two meals a day and an occasional fast was the recipe for health and long life given by Dr. J. S. Hooker in a lecture before the Psycho-Therapeutic society in London.

"In the two meals a day plan," he said, "lies a great preventive of catarrhs, influenza and a host of other diseases under the form of dyspepsia, gout and liver affections. The best time for these two meals will depend to some extent on circumstances, but I believe if it were possible for us to take our first meal about 11 or 12, and our second at six or seven in the evening, we should be all the better for it.

"I myself have not had a cold for years, and an actually feeling younger rather than older as the days go on.

"The fasting cure is essentially a cleansing process, and is especially good for such diseases as gout, rheumatism, dyspepsia, internal troubles and growths, diabetes, obesity, paralysis, blood disease of all kinds and skin affections.

"But certain conditions are advised. These are rest of mind; no business; healthy surroundings in which plenty of fresh air can be obtained; correct breathing in the open air, and after the first week, at all events for most patients, a good deal of bodily rest. No long fast should be undertaken at all without medical inspection first and medical watching."

THE JADED ONE.

fortunate.

Extravagant Economy

"What an exquisite hat!" exclaimed the caller. "What on earth are you ripping it up for? It is the height of style and a perfect beauty."

"For those very reasons I am bent on its destruction," Loretta replied grimly. "If it were in the least old-fashioned or worn I should keep it and wear it gladly."

"How absurd! Are you going to retire from society and give up all gayeties, hereafter?"

"Far from it. Because I want to continue to go out in what you are pleased to call society I give up wearing this hat."

"I love mysteries," declared the caller. "But it's time to enlighten me. Don't you like the hat?"

"I love it, I fairly dote on it, I dream of it at night," raved Loretta. "I never had a hat before that was so becoming. If I do say it, as I shouldn't.
It goes perfectly with my best dress and three young men have asked to meet me since I began to wear it.
Nevertheless I am never going to put that hat on again."

"That sounds like one of the novels in which the girl quarrels with her lover and will never wear the pink organdie again in all her life. She puts the thing away in lavender and brings it out fifty years later to show her favorite grandniece."

"There's no romance in this," laughed Loretta. "Just plain everyday finances and high economy."

"The first day I put it on," she related, "I wore it to a tea and Evelyn Trempp was there. Evelyn is interested in social settlements and she stood and watched me intently for a while before she came over to speak to me."

"I should think she might," observed the caller. "You must be well worth looking at in that hat."

"It was the hat," Loretta acknowledged. "Evelyn finally asked me to subscribe to the boys' camping fund.
I told her with my usual frankness that I could not afford it just now and she shrugged her shoulders and smiled that sort of queer smile that is so provoking."

"The hat!"

"Yes, but I didn't realize till some time afterward that that was at the bottom of it. The next time I put the hat on I was asked by the treasurer of our church if I would just as lief give my whole subscription to the mortgage fund this month instead of doling it out at the rate of $1 a week.
When I told him I had such a small amount of money at any time that it was a matter of installments or nothing with me he raised one eyebrow and walked away."

"Why, my dear girl, that is thread lace on that hat and the brocade never cost less than $15 a yard!"

"It's even worse than that," sighed Loretta. "The price of the hat is far beyond my calculation. But let me go on. When I was coming home from Janet's tea I stopped at the tailor's to ask about suits. He gave me such large estimates that I protested, and he smoothly replied with a glance at my hat: 'Well, mademoiselle can afford it.' Wasn't it absurd!"

"Served you right for combining business with pleasure."

"That isn't all," Loretta went on.
"My dentist bill was $10 more than I expected it to be and when I racked my memory I recalled that I had worn this hat into his office to make an appointment some time ago. By the way, did you know that Jean is provoked with me?"

"No, I hadn't heard of it. Is that the hat's fault, too?"

"It certainly is. She had an idea that we ought to give Miss Watson a big wedding present—all our sewing circle, you know. As I had already bought a handsome pair of candlesticks for her I told Jean that I couldn't afford to contribute more than $1. Jean was satisfied for a while, but since she saw my hat at Dora's she hasn't been quite amiable
to me."

"Well, you must acknowledge that hat could never have cost less than $100 in all its little life."

"That hat cost just 15 cents," declared Loretta.

"Nonsense!"

"I made it myself," Loretta went
on. "And my only expense was the wire frame that I bought at a sale."

"But the lace and the brocade and the flowers?"

"The top of the hat is my great-grandmother's lace parasol," Loretta explained. "It was worn all around the edges, but the center was perfect.
The lace on the brim came from an old dress my grandmother had, so though it is fine thread lace it cost me nothing. The brocade underneath is a piece of a quilt gown an ancestor of mine wore when she danced with Lafayette. I wouldn't let the milliner cut it, so it isn't hurt at all.
The flowers are some my mother had
on a trousseau hat she didn't wear much and the buckle belonged to my father's grandfather, who wore it on his shoes. And that's the whole story."

"All that history makes it more of a pity to cut it up."

"Oh, no, it doesn't," said Loretta, serenely. "I want to take it to pieces in time to let me keep at least a few friends and save me from the general charge of being too stingy to live!"

Woman's True Friend

Experimenting with new and untried medicines is foolish, and often dangerous. It would take a medicine more than forty years, to prove itself so universally good as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. During all that time it has been woman's favorite medicine—a restorative tonic, uplifting and invigorating the nervous and discouraged and giving them the final touch of perfect health.

Women use Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription in preference to all other advocated medicines for it contains no alcohol or habit-forming drugs—is not anything like advertised, secret, or patent medicines—does not claim to be able to do impossible things.

THE ONE REMEDY for women devised by a regularly graduated physician of vast experience in woman's ailments, and adapted to her delicate organism.

THE ONE REMEDY good enough that its makers are not afraid to print its every ingredient on its outside wrapper.

You can't afford to allow yourself to be over-persuaded into accepting any secret nostrum as a substitute for this honest square-deal non-secret medicine. Don't do it. No honest druggist will attempt to cheat you in this way. He who does should be rebuked and avoided. Doctors prescribe Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for their worst cases because they know what it contains and know its ingredients to be of the very best.

It's well now and then to gently cleanse out bowel germs that breed weakness, cause foul breath, loss of appetite, dizziness and headache. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets keep bowels sweet and clean. Recommended by druggists because of their purity, goodness, and active gentleness.

OLD RELIABLE GULF STREAM

Government Has Found by Investigation That the Mysterious Current Isn't Changing Its Course.

Much has been said in recent years in regard to the changing route of the gulf stream. Indeed, the character of this steady, consistent and unswerving body was getting so maligned that the government looked into the matter, with the result that this mysterious current of the ocean was entirely vindicated. Experts declare that there is no change in the course, nor has there been for many years.

No other physical feature of the ocean is subject to more persistent misinterpretation than is the gulf stream. All vagaries of climate are laid to its charge. It is a pet theory of many that the temperature of Europe is greatly affected by it, but this idea is held by high authorities to be erroneous. It is not as extensive as is commonly thought. Practically starting at the Florida straits, where its volume is made up by the union of currents, it ceases to be a true current by the time it reaches the southern limit of the grand banks, where it becomes surface drift, governed by the winds. The government experts aver that there has been absolutely no material change in the gulf stream's course in modern times.

PREVALENCE OF SCANDIUM.

Sir W. Crookes states that scandium has been found to the extent of more than one per cent. in the mineral wilkrite from Finland, and in small amounts for many other minerals. By a systematic series of fractionations it is possible to separate scandium from most associated elements; ytterbium is the most difficult to separate because its nitrate is decomposed almost as readily as scandium nitrate. In view of the atomic weight relationships and of the frequency with which these elements occur together in nature it is suggested that ytterbium and scandium are degradation products of ytterbium. Scandium can be separated from ytterbium and ytterbium by precipitation as metanitrobenzoate. Scientific American.

THE HAPPY WAY.

There is always a best way of doing everything, if it be but to boil an egg. Manners, are the happy ways of doing things; each one a stroke of genius or of love—now repeated and hardened into usage. They form at last a rich varnish, with which the routine of life is washed and its details adorned. If they are superficial, we are the dewdrops which give such a depth to the morning meadows. Manners are very communicable; men catch them from each other.—Emerson.

USE FOR OLD SHADES

NEED NOT BE THROWN AWAY WHEN WORN OUT.

Many Practical Ways in Which They May Be Utilized—Excellent for Cutting Out Dress Patterns.

Housewives are telling us that the roller shades of today are fragile and short lived compared to the substantial Holland shades we all bought a decade ago. The spring breaks too easily—a single snap or jar when set too tensely will rupture it—render the whole shade useless unless you care to bother with measurements and supply a new roller to suit. When the body of the curtain itself is a little worn and punctured it doesn't seem to pay. The shade is a discard and the wastefulness apparent.

But there are several practical uses for window shades that are past ordinary use—the cheap paper ones as well as those of standard material.

The latter is excellent for cutting out dress patterns that you wish to preserve against the ravages of time and constant handling.

Besides being strong and easily rolled, it yields readily to the pressure of hot flatirons, thus having the advantage over the flimsy delicate tissue paper in which most patterns are offered for sale. When smoothed or ironed out on dress goods for cutting, it "lays put" and requires less pinning and readjusting. Some dress patterns, entirely out of the province of fads, are good for years when cut out of something more durable than newspapers or the like. Foundation sleeve patterns, glove fitting waist, and princess patterns would easily fall into this class.

There are few abrupt changes in the styles of aprons, underwear, infants' clothes, and the like, and here again one pattern cut out of something stout and durable may save you much shopping.

Holland window shade material also makes excellent stencils for practical use as well as for preserving the pattern. And a little of this is generally on hand when the regular gelatin paper is not available.

One housewife has used old window shades in a more ingenious way. Being too narrow for any of the windows in her new home, she had one of them fastened under the pantry shelf, where it could be drawn down waste of time than turning the leaves cooking recipe came to hand that particularly appealed to her she would draw down this shade and paste it under the proper heading. It is far handier than a cookbook, for she can run her eye over the whole rapidly and spot the recipe required with less commodiously. Whenever a good new 'ol big cookbook entails.

Intact parts of this window shade material afford a good foundation for scrapbooks or more particularly books in which to keep your embroidery and crochet patterns. Cut the leaves of average book size, and punch several holes down the edge large enough for fish cord or baby ribbon to pass through. Lace back and forth across the back edge through opposite holes to get a fairly secure binding. It is better to sew your samples or patterns to the leaves than to keep them lying loose. Then you will always know just where to find them instead of going through the whole collection.

To Enamel Woodwork.

Whenever you want to apply an enamel finish, lightly rub with a medium grade of sand paper. There are several liquid paint and varnish removers on the market if the old paint is in a bad condition. Many women are able and have the time to give the finish in a room a coat of enamel paint. Dust and dirt do not adhere to this finish, and it is a great labor saver as well as a delight to the eye.

Honey Drop Cookies.

One-half cup butter, one-half cup granulated sugar, one cup honey, beaten yolks two eggs, grated rind of one lemon, three tablespoons lemon juice, whites of two eggs beaten dry, three cups sifted flour, one teaspoon soda, more flour if needed. Mix in the usual manner. Drop the dough by teaspoonfuls upon a buttered baking pan and shape in smooth rounds. Bake in a moderate oven. For a change, add one-half cup or more of cocoanut.

Steak in Buttered Crumbs.

Prepare enough dry bread crumbs and fill a cup, turn onto a platter, cut a pound and a half slice of rump or round steak in palm-sized slices, which butter on both sides and salt and pepper and thoroughly cover with crumbs; broil over a bed of red-hot coals; be careful not to scorch even; serve with browned potatoes, celery relish, stewed tomato, macaroni and tomato or creamed cabbage.

Almond Candy.

Boil one cup sugar, one-third cup of water without stirring until amber color. Just before taking from fire add one-quarter teaspoon cream tartar. Pour candy over blanched almonds in a buttered pan.

Apple Lemon Pie.

Mix in order given, two small apples (chopped), one heaping cup sugar, one egg, one-quarter cup cracker crumbs, grated rind and juice of one lemon. Bake with two crusts. Makes one pie.

VALUABLE IN THE HOUSEHOLD

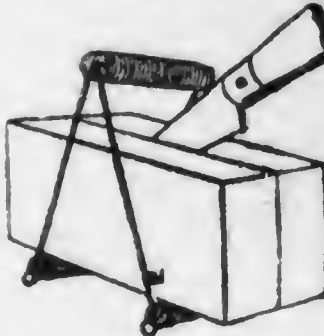

Innumerable Uses to Which Sawdust May Be Put to Good Advantage.

Sawdust may be put to serve a number of purposes for the housewife. It is good for removing sediment in glass and earthenware. A handful thrown on a drying fire will help to revive it. Well dried and heated and sprinkled over grease spots in carpet is useful in removing these objectionable marks. It should be well rubbed in, left for a few hours, then treated again if necessary. Heat some sawdust on a piece of paper in the stove and it is an excellent remedy for dew and damp spots on metal or polished goods. Rub some dry dust on articles that have been washed, and the polish will last longer. Slightly moisten sawdust sprinkled on outhouses floors, verandas or lawns, etc., and brushed off with a broom will cleanse the floor without much trouble.

CLEANS KNIVES WITH EASE

Device of California Man One of the Best Ever Placed on the Market.

There are all varieties of knife cleaners from the single stone, of which the housewife rubs her cutlery, to the elaborate device of multiple wheels used in the big hotels and restaurants. But one of the simplest and most effective of all would seem to be that devised by a California man and shown here. This contrivance consists of a couple of cleaning stones held in juxtaposition in a resilient frame. The frame consists of two inverted V-shaped wires with springs connecting the three corners of each. This has the effect of keeping the stones closer together all the time, but allowing enough leeway for the admission of a knife blade or the tines of a fork, which can be cleaned by being rubbed up and down a few times. The springs will ensure a sufficiently strong pressure to give good frictional action at all times.

Useful Hints.

Milk will clean piano keys admirably. It will take out all spots of long standing. Used in starch it will give a fine gloss. It will remove the coloration from gilt mirrors and picture frames. Used with bluing, lace curtains it will make them look like new.

To cloud quickly the windows in a bath room, etc., apply with a brush a strong solution of epsom salts mixed in vinegar. This gives a beautiful frosted appearance and becomes permanent if varnished over with white varnish.

Mahogany or any other colored wood may be darkened by polishing with cold drawn linseed oil.

Splendid Cookies.

One after of flour, one teaspoonful soda, and pinch of salt; sift and then take lard and mix in, as for pie dough. Two cups of brown sugar; flavor with maple and vanilla; roll out and sprinkle granulated sugar thickly on top, cut out with a large cookie cutter and press a raisin or nut in the center of each; just before putting in the oven take the tip of the finger and wet the top, and the cookies will be crinkly and crisp. If sweet milk or water is used two teaspoonfuls of baking powder in place of soda.

Chicken a la Hollandaise.

Take out the breast bone of a large young fowl and fill up the space with a nice force meat. Make a batter for fritters and when the fowl is half roasted pour the batter over, let dry and then pour on more until it is thickly coated and a rich brown color. Remove from pan, cut up as for a fricassee, place on platter, lay some fritters around the edge of dish, scatter some sprigs of parsley over, and serve at once with melted butter and lemon quarters. Oyster force meat is nice.

In Cooking Oysters.

In scalloping oysters do not use much of the liquor. Milk may be substituted. Put on plenty of butter, twice as much on the top layer as in the under ones, or it will not be well browned. For creamed oysters use all the liquor from the oysters in place of some of the milk. This quite changes the flavor of the dish.

Scotch Souffle.

Sift with one pound of flour a teaspoonful of bicarbonate of soda, a half teaspoonful of cream of tartar and a little salt. Wet with sour milk, roll out round the size of a pie plate, cut in four pieces and lay on a hot griddle, which has been dusted with dry flour only. When slightly browned turn and brown the other side.

Bacon Hint.

A new way to cook bacon. Cut thin slices, roll in beaten egg, then in corn meal, and fry slowly a dainty brown.

Strike One!

Let the forces of the law in Hopkinsville be not discouraged at the first failure.

The night riders made three attempts to invade Hopkinsville before they succeeded. Good citizens who are seeking to uphold the law and bring to punishment those who deserve punishment should be no less persistent.

Hopkinsville is still at the bat and it takes three outs to retire the side.

Let the fight go on and on until justice triumphs in the end.

The trial has not been without its lessons and its benefits. We know now, better than before, who the guilty men are and a night rider with his mask off loses much of his fierceness and looks like any other criminal.

The eyes of all Kentucky are on the only city in the State that refuses to give up the struggle to vindicate the good name of Kentucky.

There are other cases against Dr. Amoss and the resources of the law have not yet been exhausted.

Let the next jury come from some other county outside the zone of night riderism, let the next case be made still stronger—for new facts are constantly coming to light—and there will yet be a triumph of justice.

In the meantime there is work for the next grand jury to do. There are more indictments to be returned and there should be some for false swearing.

No question is ever settled until it is settled right.

No game of ball is lost by a single foul tip.

Let's have another inning! Play ball!

Andrew Carnegie may be called as a witness in the New York grand jury's investigation of the affairs of the defunct Carnegie Trust Company. The District Attorney issued a statement that the books of the trust company show that Mr. Carnegie lent it vast sums of money, and that it is doubtful if he will ever get it back.

A small band of Mexican rebels stole into the Federal barracks at Juarez Wednesday night, and a few moments later the town was thrown into wild excitement by a terrific explosion. Parts of several buildings were wrecked. Several cavalrymen were reported killed and ten wounded rebels were captured.

Famine in the way of foodstuffs and coal is threatened at Somerset and other Kentucky towns on the Q. & C. railroad on account of the firemen's strike. No freight trains have arrived at Somerset since last Friday, and many plants have closed down at Burnside for lack of coal.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

Physiological applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedial. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed, you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is completely closed, deafness is the result, and cures the inflammation can be taken out and the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Dr. Williams' Catarrh Cure. Send for circular free.

Boice, pitcher.

The above is a list of the players who will probably report for practice when Chief Harry Lloyd orders prospective Indians to romp about, week after next. The chief is in communication with all of the above and several more and if they can come to terms contracts will be mailed. Any of the above named players would be acceptable Indians according to Manager Lloyd.

St. Patrick's Day.

Yesterday was the anniversary dedicated to the memory of Ireland's patron saint and emblems of green were seen on every hand. Many more or less Irish citizens appeared with green ties, others wore shamrock or a simple sprig of anything that happened to be green. In addition to keeping green the memory of St. Patrick, March 17 is supposed to mark the real advent of spring, but the day was not altogether springlike yesterday.

Three Legged Chicken.

Mrs. Robert Bronaugh, of Casky, reports a freak chicken hatched with three legs. The extra leg is attached to the breast bone and does not seem to seriously interfere with the chicken, which is alive and flourishing. It also has five toes on each of its three feet. It is now two weeks old. Mrs. Bronaugh raises Barred Plymouth Rocks and the freak belongs to that variety.

It often causes a species of mental derangement or delirium called Moneymania. Many are willing to be thus inoculated.

It is the feature of social distinction. It is the measure of intelligence; those who have it are Wise; those who have it not are Foolish. Possession of it entitles one to the use of a Moneygram.

tween two or more persons to do by concert of action an unlawful act by unlawful means.

Instruction No. 2.

"The court further says to the jury, if you should believe from the evidence in this case beyond a reasonable doubt that in this county and before the finding of the indictment herein, the defendant, Dr. D. A. Amoss, did, wilfully and feloniously conspire and confederate with his co-defendants, J. B. Malone, Guy Dunning, Newton Nichols, John Robinson and Irving Glass, and other persons to the grand jury unknown, or anyone of said co-defendants; Malone, Dunning, Nichols, Robinson or Glass, or with some other person or persons to the grand jury unknown, for the purpose of molesting, injuring, or destroying property of other persons, and in pursuance of said conspiracy and confederation or banding together, the defendant, Dr. D. A. Amoss, with anyone or more of the defendants, J. B. Malone, Guy Dunning, Newton Nichols, John Robinson or Irving Glass, or with any other person or persons to the grand jury unknown, acting with him and he with them did, in the county and State aforesaid, on the 6th day of December, 1907, or at any time before the finding of the indictment herein, wilfully and feloniously go forth so banded and confederated together as aforesaid for the purpose of molesting, injuring and destroying the property of other persons, and did then, and there, as a result of the said conspiracy and confederation and going forth, and in pursuance of the common design thereof, set fire to, burn, molest, injure and destroy the tobacco warehouse of John C. Latham in the city of Hopkinsville, all as a result of the said conspiracy and going forth as aforesaid, you will find the defendant, Mr. D. A. Amoss guilty as charged in the indictment and fix his punishment at confinement in the State penitentiary for not less than one year nor more than fifteen years in your discretion.

Instruction No. 3.

"The court further says to the jury, if you should believe from the evidence in this case beyond a reasonable doubt that in this county, and before the finding of the indictment herein, the defendant, Dr. D. INFLAMMATION AND PAIN

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Creston, Iowa.—"I was troubled for a long time with inflammation, pains in my side, sick headaches and nervousness. I had taken so many medicines that I was discouraged and thought I would never get well. A friend told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it restored me to health. I have no more pain, my nerves are stronger and I can do my own work. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me after everything else had failed, and I recommend it to other suffering women."—Mrs. Wm. Seals, 605 W. Howard St., Creston, Iowa.

Thousands of unsolicited and genuine testimonials like the above prove the efficiency of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made exclusively from roots and herbs.

Women who suffer from those distressing ills should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

If you want special advice write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. She will treat your letter as strictly confidential. For 30 years she has been helping sick women in this way, free of charge. Don't hesitate—write at once.

Instruction No. 4.

The Court further says to the jury, if you should believe from the evidence in this case beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant, Dr. D. A. Amoss, did, unlawfully, wilfully, and feloniously, conspire and confederate with J. B. Malone, Guy Dunning, Newton Nichols, John Robinson and Irving Glass, and other persons to the grand jury unknown, or with any one of said defendants, Malone, Dunning, Nichols, Robinson, or Glass, or with some other person, or persons, to the grand jury unknown, for the purpose of molesting, injuring or destroying property of other persons, and in pursuance of said conspiracy and confederation said conspirators, or any one or more of them, went forth and set fire to and destroyed the tobacco warehouse of John C. Latham in Hopkinsville, Kentucky; and should further believe from the evidence that said conspiracy and confederation was formed and perfected (if it was formed and perfected) in a county or counties other than Christian, and in pursuance of said conspiracy and confederation said conspirators or any of them came into Christian county and burned the tobacco warehouse of John C. Latham, in Hopkinsville, Kentucky, then in that event the offense charged in the indictment was committed in Christian county and if you should believe from the evidence beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant, Dr. D. A. Amoss, did conspire and confederate for the purpose of molesting, injuring, or destroying property, or went forth for said purpose as charged in the indictment and fully set out in instructions No. 2 and 3, then in such event you will find the defendant, Dr. D. A. Amoss, guilty as charged in the indictment and fix his punishment as directed in instructions No. 2 and 3.

Instruction No. 5.

The court further says to the jury, if you should believe from the evidence in these cases that the witnesses, Milton Oliver, Sanford Hall, Arthur Cooper, did wilfully, unlawfully, and feloniously, conspire or confederate with the defendants, Dr. D. A. Amoss, J. B. Malone, John Robinson, and Irvin Glass, or any one of them, or with other person or persons, to the grand jury unknown, for the purpose of molesting, injuring, or destroying property of other persons or as a result of the said conspiracy and confederation and in pursuance of the common design thereof, go forth and set fire to, burn, molest, injure and destroy the tobacco warehouse of John C. Latham, in the city of Hopkinsville as charged in the indictment, then they, or such one or ones of them as did so unlawfully, wilfully and feloniously conspire and confederate for said purpose of molesting, injuring, or destroying property of other persons, or went forth as aforesaid with an accomplice or accomplices in the crime charged in the indictment, and the jury can not convict the defendant upon the testimony alone of such accomplice or accomplices unless same be corroborated by other evidence in this case tending to connect the defendant, Dr. D. A. Amoss, with the crime charged in the indictment, and such corroboration is not sufficient if it merely shows that the offense was committed, and the circumstances thereof.

Instruction No. 6.

The court further says to the jury, that the law presumes the defendant to be innocent until he is proven guilty beyond a reasonable doubt; and if upon the whole case the jury should entertain a reasonable doubt as to any fact necessary to establish his guilt as set out in instructions Nos. 2 and 3, having been proven, then he is entitled to an acquittal, and the jury shall find him not guilty.

There are still 11 more of the night rider cases on the docket, two against Dr. Amoss and three against Guy Dunning, John Robinson, B. Malone, Newton Nichols, and Irving Glass. When these cases were called yesterday morning they were passed indefinitely which means in effect that they will be continued to the June term.

There was a general exodus of defendants and their friends from the city yesterday morning and there is now an entire absence of crowds or excitement about the courthouse.

The witnesses for the State, Milton Oliver, Arthur Cooper and Carl Cooper had not left yesterday, but will return at once to their homes. The squad of soldiers guarding Oliver resumed their uniforms yes-

Rockford, Ala.—Mr. M. C. Paechal, of this place, says: "I was taken with nervous prostration, and had headache, backache, pains in my right side, and smothering spells. I called in physicians to treat my case, but without relief. Finally, I tried Cardui, and it gave perfect satisfaction. I recommend it to every sick woman." Are you weak, tired, worn-out? Do you suffer from any of the pains peculiar to weak women? Cardui has a record of over fifty years in relieving such troubles, and will certainly benefit you. It prevents those frequent headaches, and keeps you up, out of bed, feeling fresh and happy. Try Cardui.

DODGING THE DENTIST

Vedderman really should have gone to the dentist some time before he mentioned the fact that his tooth was hurting him.

Vedderman is six feet one way and correspondingly broad the other and his competitors in business simply lie down and give up the fight if he chooses to make them perform tricks, so of course it would be heresy to say he was a coward. The fact remains that when the first little twinge in the tooth made him sit up and take notice he kept still about it. He had a sneaking hope that it was a false alarm.

It was not. Anything cold or anything hot he learned to eat on the other side of his mouth and occasional moments of forgetfulness brought him starts of retributive anguish. Still, he kept his sorrow to himself. No body knew anything about the disturbed condition of his dental apparatus till the grapefruit at breakfast one morning hit the tender nerve.

"Ouch!" said Vedderman, involuntarily, as he clapped his hand to his face.

"Why, Henry!" said Mrs. Vedderman. "You must have a cavity in a tooth! You must go to the dentist!"

"I s'pose so," agreed Vedderman, with great reluctance.

"I know you dread the dentist," went on his wife, "but—"

"What!" Vedderman exploded, indignantly. "Whatever put such an idea into your head? I'd just as soon go to the dentist as smoke a cigar! What do you take me for?"

"Well, I'm glad you feel that way about it," said his wife. "You'd better make an appointment today. It doesn't do to let those things run!"

It was three days later that Mrs. Vedderman casually inquired about her husband's appointment with the dentist.

"Oh!" said Vedderman, with an elaborate start. "I have been so busy that I've forgotten to run in. My tooth doesn't hurt so much, anyhow."

The next night at dinner Mrs. Vedderman smiled sweetly at her husband. "I called up Dr. Swift today, Henry," she said, "and made an appointment for you next Thursday morning at ten. I thought it would save you the trouble!"

Vedderman put down his napkin and stared at her in a startled way. Then he coughed. "You meant kindly, no doubt, my dear," he told her, "but it is just another instance of a woman's interfering in something she knows nothing about! I have a business engagement for next Thursday that is extremely important. Kindly phone Dr. Swift and cancel the appointment! I'm just as anxious as you are to get that tooth filled."

"Well, you don't act that way!" said his wife, tartly.

Every day thereafter Mrs. Vedderman inquired whether he had seen Dr. Swift, until Vedderman, in sheer self-defense arranged to have his tooth attended to. When he came home to dinner the night of the day he was to have gone to the dentist's his wife beamed cheerfully at him.

"I'm so glad it's all over," she said. "Did he hurt you much?"

Vedderman turned his back on her as he hung up his overcoat with extreme care. Then he coughed. "I didn't go to the dentist's today," he said, rapidly. "I had to phone him to set another date. Our eastern man was in town and I had to see him—"

"Henry Vedderman!" interrupted his wife, in indignant tones. "I never would have thought it of you! I'm ashamed!"

"Look here, Mary!" said her husband, defiantly. "I don't like the way you treat this affair! You act as though I were postponing it on purpose! You don't think I'm afraid to go to the dentist, do you?"

"Oh, no!" said his wife, with sarcasm.

"Anyhow," Vedderman said, lamely, "it hasn't hurt nearly so much!"

He bit on an unexpected fragment of bone in the roast that sent him to the ceiling. Mrs. Vedderman merely looked at him, but the look was withering. The constant dull ache got on his temper, too.

Finally, the fourth time he postponed his appointment, Dr. Swift set the hour at 9:00 a. m. and Vedderman saw no hope looming up ahead of him. He ate his breakfast like a condemned criminal and his brow was gloomy.

That night when he got home his wife looked at him inquiringly.

"What do you think!" Vedderman said, in great indignation. "When I got to the dentist's today he wasn't there and the girl said he'd been suddenly called away on important business! After all the time I've been trying to get at that man it seems he might have had a little consideration for a patient and stay at home and attend to business instead of gallivanting around! It makes me tired! Here I've tried and tried to get work done and sat around and waited and then he runs away as though it didn't matter! Doesn't he think my time is worth anything?"

"Henry," interrupted his wife, "as a good, all-around bluffer you are everlastingly beyond the limit! Go up head! You know you're tickled to death to get off again!"

"No such thing!" growled Vedderman. "Anyhow, he'll be gone only two days and the duffer left an appointment for me for the very first day!"

TOO PRECIOUS TO DESTROY

Woman of Old Salem Was Shocked by Idea of Smoothing a Crease Made in Paris.

"Makers to his majesty," and "Imported" are words that carry much weight to many minds. It is strange what a glory a foreign label can cast upon a commonplace article. The fact of a commodity having crossed the water, however, is not taken quite so seriously today as it was some fifty or sixty years ago. M. C. D. Silsbee gives an instance in her "A Half Century in Salem."

Miss Ann M. Rust was one of the two milliners. She had a large collection of finery, shelves full of handsome ribbons, and glass showcases of rich embroideries, besides the inevitable bonnets.

Once she imported a quantity of exquisite French caps. The strings were somewhat crushed in the transit across the ocean. The caps were quickly disposed of. An aunt bought one, and Miss Rust innocently observed that a "warm iron would make the creases all right."

"What!" indignantly exclaimed the aunt. "Smooth a crease made in Paris? No, indeed, never!"

ELLEN TERRY ON CLOTHES.

After trying garments of every size and shape in private life, I have ended by adopting the Japanese style one day and the Greek the next. A cupboard full of unworn corsets bears witness to the number of presentations and representations I have received (and disregarded) from stay-makers and stay-recommenders, begging me to improve my figure. But on the stage I have submitted even to the iron body-casings of the Tudor period. As Queen Katherine I paid my tribute to archaeology in those awful stays, and added thick brocade dresses with fur sleeves of tremendous weight. But my preference is for a loose, diaphanous dress; I am always happy in it.—McClure's.

APPROPRIATE.

The toastmaster didn't have a set list of speeches to announce, so he apportioned the talks among the best speakers present as best he could. He did pretty well, too, until he announced: "The toast 'Our Absent Members,' will be responded to by Mr. Blank H. Dash." Then everybody laughed, loud and long. Why? Because Mr. Blank H. Dash has lost an arm and a leg.

THE REAL ESSENTIAL.

An English lad overheard his young lady sister say that she, for one, should not consider herself properly married if she were not married in church. The London Standard reports his practical view of the matter.

"Well, I should consider myself properly married," he said, "if I got a nice wife."

THOSE LOVING FRIENDS.

Nan—I wish I had as beautiful teeth as Lil has.

Fan—Yes? If you had you'd smile as often as she does, wouldn't you?

A man is never too old to learn that he knows a lot of things he should forget.

It isn't difficult for a man to get a woman to agree with him if she isn't his wife.

TROUBLE AVERTED

"You must find that newspaper dreadfully interesting!" said Mrs. Alcock resignedly after her husband had been immersed in its pages fifteen minutes or so.

"Huh?" asked Alcock, startled. "Oh," he explained. "I was just reading about that aviation meet. I'd like an airship myself."

"Why," said Mrs. Alcock, "there'd be just about as much sense in your having an airship as in my insulating on getting that diamond necklace I saw in the window and liked! You couldn't run an aeroplane if you had it."

"I don't know about that," returned Alcock. "I don't know that I haven't as much brains as the ordinary man and it seems to me if I applied myself to the study assiduously and didn't stop for meals or sleep I might in time qualify to handle one of those things! It's too bad you have such a low opinion of my mental ability, Evangeline!"

"Oh, I'm not saying anything about your brains," explained Mrs. Alcock. "It wouldn't take brains especially just to remember what levers to pull and push, but somehow I can't imagine your doing anything like that! It's so—so daring!"

"Oh, make me out a stick and a coward!" said Alcock, bitterly. "Of course you wouldn't care if I took my life in my hands every time I ascended—you hadn't thought of that!"

"Well, all I've got to say, Lucius Alcock," said his wife, indignantly. "Is that any man with a family on his hands thinks precious little of his duties and responsibilities when he rushes headlong into idiotically foolish dangers! I'd like to know what Tommy and little Eva and I would do if you got all smashed up caving in around in the air just for your own selfish pleasure and not giving a thought to those nearest and dearest to you! At least they ought to be dearest, but goodness only knows nowadays what men think, rushing off at every crazy notion!"

"That's always the way!" declared Alcock. "Women are not a bit progressive or interested in their husbands' advancement. All they care about is to have them trot along in the same dull old way, just so they turn in their pay checks at the end of the week! They haven't a thought above groceries and the gas bill!"

"Well, I'd like to hear what you'd say if I tried to feed you on pickled airships!" cried his wife. "Or if I ran gasoline through the gas pipes! I guess you'd think groceries and gas were pretty important things after all! You can't make the family's clothes out of airships, either!"

"Clothes!" echoed Alcock. "I suppose clothes are of more importance than the progress of the human race! I suppose you'd consider that necklace more necessary to the trend of civilization than an airship!"

"I don't see why not!" declared Mrs. Alcock, tapping on the table with her thumb. "I don't see why it isn't just as important for me to keep myself up and look as nice as I can and wear pretty things so the children won't be ashamed of their mother and you won't, either—though goodness knows I might change my dress five times a day and you wouldn't notice it!"

"That necklace wasn't expensive when you consider the clearness of the stones and you can always sell diamonds! I never heard of any one being able to pawn an airship! Why, an airship would be a perfect drug on the market, with no place to keep it, because the back yard is too narrow, besides there'd be no place to hang the washing on Mondays! And I'd never consent to your taking little Tommy out in it Sunday mornings, so I don't see what good it would do the family, Lucius Alcock!"

"Every bit as much good as your diamond necklace!" said her husband, scathingly. "I couldn't wear it and you couldn't even give it to Tommy to play with, because he might swallow it. And a man doesn't exactly buy an airship to amuse the family!"

"Well, all I've got to say," declared Mrs. Alcock, getting out her handkerchief. "Is that a married man hasn't any business spending a lot of money on something his family can't enjoy with him! It's downright selfish, so it is, and I'd never have thought it of you!"

"It's no more selfish than you and your diamonds!" asserted Alcock sternly. "Of all foolish ideas that's the worst!"

"You never want me to have anything I want!" kept Mrs. Alcock.

"You're always down on my buying things that I like," retorted Alcock.

His eye at that instant fell upon the hole in the rug and the scratched wood of the sofa. A slow grin eliminated the flush of indignation on his countenance and he reached over and placed his hand on Mrs. Alcock's little flat that lay clinched on the table.

"Evangeline," he said, in a different tone, "so long as I'm getting only fifteen hundred a year and there are four of us I don't believe we really need to spat over buying airships and diamonds, do we?"

Mrs. Alcock gave a final sniff and then giggled helplessly. "It is awfully foolish," she said.

Impatience is the worst foe of improvement.

Who Was There That You Knew?

In the shadowy ranks of those who marched to defeat or death or victory fifty years ago in the mighty conflict that convulsed this great nation, is there a father or grandfather or uncle of yours? Would you like to see a photograph of him in that long ago day of his youth—a photograph that he never knew was taken? Perhaps we can show you one; and in any case, we can tell you a story, stranger than any detective fiction, of 3,500 priceless photographs that were lost and are found again.

3,500 Long Buried Photographs of the Civil War

THEY were taken by the greatest photographer in the United States of that day; they were bought by the United States Government for $30,000; they were buried in the War Department for 50 years—they are buried there still. But a duplicate set was kept by the photographer—who died poor and broken down; that duplicate set was knocked down to suit for nearly 50 years, until it was discovered by a New England collector. J. Pierpont Morgan tried to secure the collection—Ex-President Garfield and General Sherman's F. Butler said it was worth $150,000—but with the help of the Review of Reviews, the entire collection has been gathered into 13 great volumes and is placed within your reach at less than the value of one of the photographs. It is the one accurate, impartial history of the Civil War for the camera cannot lie. It tells the story of the War you never heard before. Taken under protection of the Secret Service, these photographs bring to light thousands of hitherto known phases of the war; they penetrate to strange places and reveal strange things.

PRACTICAL LANGUAGE SCHOOL

Cleveland to Have an Institution Where the Foreign Tongues Will Be Taught by Native Experts.

Because a woman dreamed and worked for years to realize her dream, Cleveland will have a school where modern languages, French, German, Italian and Spanish, will be taught by teachers native to the countries. Pupils will learn to speak each of the languages "as well as though it had been learned in the country where it was invented."

Mme. Archinard will be at the head of the new school, which will be called the Practical School of Language and which will be opened in a house equipped for the purpose.

Mme. Archinard came to Cleveland eight years ago. She was born in Paris and for several years previous to coming here taught in a private school just outside of that city.

All this time it has been her great ambition to see a school started here where the languages could be taught in a practical manner, in a way that would enable each of the students to become proficient in pronunciation and in using the idioms of the language which he would study.

Already German, Spanish and Italian teachers have been engaged. —Cleveland Plain Dealer.

WOMAN'S WAY.

Old Stager—I hope you didn't believe what they said about me?

Pierrette—I make it a point never to believe more than half I hear.

Old Stager—But the trouble is you women generally believe the wrong half.

FLINTY HEARTED.

Speaking of the discouragements that sometimes come to the lot of a well meaning clergyman Rev. Dr. E. T. Jeffres, a professor in the Collegiate institute in New York, said in a confab with the Presbyterian ministers.

"There is always some flint-hearted individual in your congregation to frown on the 'prodigal sons,' 'backsliders,' 'lost sheep' and other penitents who return to the fold."

"I was once welcoming a prodigal son and was just warming up to my subject when one of these individuals in the congregation said in a very audible whisper:

"'Corn husks would be too good for the critter.'"—Philadelphia Times.

MAKING THEM USEFUL.

Olga, a Swedish maid of all work, had curiously defined ideas regarding property rights, although she had no intention of being at all dishonest. On one occasion when it was Olga's afternoon out her mistress said to her when she was about to depart from the house:

"Olga, I can't find those handsome silk stockings of mine. Have you seen them?"

"Yes, ma'am, I have them on. I know you stay home today and do not need them. You can have a pair of mine to wear yooast around home if you haf none."—Sunday Magazine.

UNATTAINABLE HEIGHTS.

"Surgery," said Simeon Ford, at a dinner in New York, "accomplishes wonders nowadays. Hearts are sewed up, the appendix is removed; the large intestine is done away with. But—"

The noted humorist smiled. "But will the time ever come when surgery will be able to remove the cheek of a young man or the jaw of an old woman?"

ALMOST LIBELOUS.

Compositor—This headline, "Wrestling Match Won in Three Straight Falls," is several letters too long.

Foreman—Scratch out the word "straight."

NEW USES FOR OLD GLASS

Common Window Panes Long Exposed to Weather Are Wanted by a Maker of Sun Spectacles.

"Until recently," said a man in the house wrecking business, "we never paid much attention to the window glass of the old houses we pulled down. Plate glass windows were saved, but the little square panes of ordinary glass were ruthlessly smashed as not worth removing. But the other day an optician came to me and offered a good price for them, provided only he could first look over the house about to be demolished and select whatever panes would answer his purpose. This was his explanation:

"Smoked and green eyeglasses are now discarded, since it has been proven that the only real relief from sun glare is a certain pale violet tinged glass—a discovery made by our naval oculists when they were trying to fix up the sailors' eyes for target practice down in sun-scorching Guantanamo. This violet glass is difficult to make, but common window panes that have been exposed to the weather for 20 years or more sometimes take on that exact shade of violet or mauve that will modify tropical sunshine to the human eye. That is why, as a maker of eyeglasses, I want to examine all the old places you are commissioned to pull down, and am willing to pay a good price for whatever panes I may find available."

NO TROUBLE AT ALL.

The Girl (offended)—But you had no business to kiss me.

The Man—But it wasn't business—it was pleasure.

SWIMMING BY MACHINERY.

A ten-pound swimming machine that may be packed in a suit case is the invention of a Frenchman. It is a safe and rapid semicraft for the man who swims or the man who doesn't. At the front of the apparatus is a cylindrical metal float, with conical point and a depending rudder. At the rear is another metal float, with stirrups acting upon a propeller, the two ends connected by a wooden bar, on which the swimmer lies as if on the water.

Kicking with his feet and alternately pushing and pulling with a cross handle bar just back of the forward float the swimmer on the swimming machine gets a maximum of exercise while making a speed impossible to the ordinary swimmer on the open water.

NEAT COMPLIMENT.

Mrs. T. P. O'Connor in "I Myself" writes: Another literary man who was very neat and methodical was Sir Edwin Arnold. He told me that on one occasion in America a newspaper reporter had extracted a long interview from him, and just at the end said, 'Now, Sir Edwin, what is your opinion of the American woman?' 'An exhaustive subject,' said Sir Edwin, 'but I can dispose of it in one word. "Afrin." 'And what,' said the reporter, 'does that mean?' 'It is Turkish,' said Sir Edwin, 'and means "Oh, Allah, make many more of them." '"

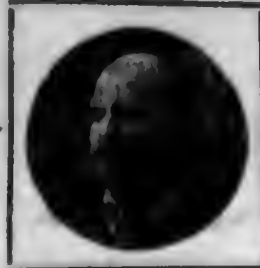

POOR BROWN.

"Sorry, Brown," said the doctor after the examination. "You're in a very serious condition. I'm afraid I'll have to operate on you."

"Operate?" gasped Brown. "Why, I haven't any money for operations. I'm only a poor workingman."

"You're insured, are you not?" "Yes, but I don't get that until after I'm dead."

"Oh, that'll be all right," said the doctor, consolingly.—Lippincott's.

Days.

ONE AGAINST L. & N.

Officers of Terry Coal & Coke
Co., For Inability To Fill Cash Orders.

The grand jury, which adjourned
Wednesday, returned only 30 indictments but some of them were important.

Two indictments were returned against L. Haydon and L. G. Williams growing out of the troubles of the Terry Coal Co. As officers of the company they are charged with receiving money from J. C. Johnson and J. M. Adams for coal which was not supplied or the money returned.

The L. & N. Railroad Co., is indicted as a "common nuisance" for failing to keep the closet in its de-

AFTER SIXTEEN YEARS

Warden From North Carolina
Comes For C. P. Sale.

Lexington, Ky., March 17.—Warden C. P. Sale, of North Carolina state penitentiary, left here for Raleigh with T. B. Whitson, who was arrested here last week, charged with being an escaped prisoner.

Whitson admitted that he escaped from the penitentiary 16 years ago while serving 30-years term for murder. Since his escape Whitson has lived an upright life in Kentucky and has amassed a comfortable fortune. A concerted movement will be started to secure a pardon for Whitson as soon as he is returned to prison.

TO LIQUIDATE.

The Affairs of the Insolvent
Acme Mills & Elevator
Co. to be Wound Up.

At a meeting of the bondholders
of the Acme Mills & Elevator Co., held March 11, it was decided that it is best for all concerned that the mill property be sold privately to satisfy the bond mortgage debt of $190,000. A paper is now in circulation and the bondholders are signing it. The mill is now idle and the insurance is not sufficient and the property is rapidly depreciating in value. It is believed that the property can be sold for enough to pay at least a part of the bonded debt. The stockholders will lose their entire holdings, as the mill is hopelessly insolvent and its affairs will have to be closed up in or out of court.

Purely Personal

Councilman H. L. Lebkuecher has gone to Elkhart, Ind., on business.

Dr. O. C. Suggett, a prominent Surgeon of St. Louis, is visiting his cousin, Mrs. W. A. Radford.

Prof. C. H. Dietrich, of Winchester, is here as a witness in court.

Mrs. H. L. McPherson was called to Carthage yesterday by the death of her sister, Mrs. Caffee.

Mrs. Sue A. Adams, of Princeton, is visiting her sister, Mrs. H. C.
Moore.

Mrs. Fannie Keen Roach, of Evansville, is visiting Mrs. Jno. B.
Trice.

Mrs. N. B. Edmonds and Mrs. N.
D. Green are visiting Mrs. J. K.
Hooser, in Paducah.

W. H. Timmons, who some months ago moved here from Trigg county, left with his family this week for Woodburn, Oregon, with a view of making his future home in that state.

G. W. Shadoin, who has been traveling salesman for the E. E.
Sutherland Medicine Co., Paducah, for about ten years, has resigned to accept a similar place with the Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn. He has been assigned territory in Virginia for the present.

Tickets Selling Rapidly for the Delsarte.

Interest in the beautiful Delsarte entertainment at Holland's opera house next Tuesday evening, for the benefit of the U. D. C. drinking fountain, still increases. The tickets are selling rapidly and a large crowd is expected. Don't miss it.
From the beautiful Shenandoah Valley, the Harrisburg Times says:

"It is safe to say that a more thoroughly delighted audience has never been present at Assembly Hall than the large crowd that witnessed Mrs. Reid's Delsarte entertainment last night. The program was truly artistic and one that was attuned to suit the taste of the most aesthetic and exacting critic. At the same time the humorous element was so keenly and adroitly interwoven that even the most commonplace observer had ample opportunity to laugh and enjoy the program."

The same program will be given by about 100 of Hopkinsville's most attractive young people. The "Dude Drill" and "Guess What" will be the catch of the season. You will laugh as you never laughed before.
Get your seat reserved at Anderson-Fowler's Saturday morning before the choice seats are all gone. Watch for their advertising program. It contains $75 worth of advertisements from many of the most enterprising business firms. It will be sent all over the county and it will be to your interest to read every word on it.

MISS PARRENT

Renders Program at Fairview
In Charming Manner.

Fairview, Kentucky, March 17.— Miss Corrine Parrent, of Hopkinsville, the talented young concert reader, gave a recital here Saturday evening, March 11, and scored another great triumph in the art of elocution, adding another laurel to her crown of cleverness. Miss Par-rent showed herself master of her chosen art by rendering her program with such graceful ease and in such a charming manner as to captivate her audience and hold it spellbound from beginning to end. A most hearty welcome and an increased audience awaits the return of Miss Parrent when she chooses to date with us for another program.

Paul Winn, Coal Dealer.

The Davis, Hester, Winn Co., has been dissolved by mutual consent and the several partners will return to the lines they were engaged in before the consolidation. Paul Winn will resume the coal business in his own name at the corner of Seventh and Railroad streets and will continue to handle the St. Bernard Diamond coal, one of the best on the market. He invites the continued patronage of his friends at the same stand as heretofore.

J. W. Newman Returns
From Porto Rico— Will Consult Attorneys First.

Louisville, Mar. 17.—Returned to Louisville last night from Porto Rico where he has been conducting an insular fair, J. W. Newman, until recently secretary of the Kentucky Sta-Fair, declined to discuss the election of Perry M. Shy, of Frankfort, a his successor. He stated that he wished to talk with friends and attorneys before making any statement.

It was contended by William Adams, of Cynthiana, at the meeting last Saturday when Mr. Shy was elected that Mr. Newman held a four-year contract and that for this reason he could not legally be displaced this year.

Married in Nashville.

Ernest Wilkins and Miss Elizabeth
Ford were married in Nashville Thursday. It was not an elopement, the young people preferring a trip to the Tennessee city to a home wedding.

The groom was, when a mere boy,
an employe of the Kentuckian and is now manager for the Cumberland Telephone Company at Cadiz.

His bride is a daughter of Mr.
and Mrs. J. T. Ford, North Main,
this city.

Mr. Wilkins and his bride spent Thursday night in this place and went to Cadiz yesterday, where they will reside.

Next Attraction

The next attraction at the opera house will be J. A. Cobourn's Minstrels Friday, March 24. It is a fine company, that has been here before.

Clark's Big Market House---

FARMERS—We want to extend to you a cordial invitation to visit our store while in the city.
We will be glad to show you through our big ware-rooms and let you see the class of goods we carry in stock, and the quantities in which we buy them.

CAR LOAD LOTS—It was certainly an innovation in the Grocery line for a merchant to buy all heavy goods in Car Load lots and pay spot cash for them. That is the reason we give Farmers wholesale prices on what they buy of us.

FLOUR—We are the largest buyers and distributors of Flour in Western Kentucky. Don't fail to see us if you want good Flour at low price.

SUGAR—Just received ANOTHER CAR
LOAD. Get our prices, the market is advancing.

FISH MARKET—We are receiving daily
the finest line of fish in the city.
Large Croppies 15c pound Dressed Channel Cat, ready to cook—no bones 15c pound
